

Therapeutic Choices

2nd ed. Editor-in-chief, J. Gray. 886 pp. Illust. Canadian Pharmacists Association. 1998. ISBN 0-919115-77-2

Overall rating: Excellent
Strengths: Comprehensive; clear diagrams, algorithms and tables; easy to use
Weaknesses: Unnecessary length
Audience: Medical students, residents, prescribing physicians

The second edition of this popular text is more than just an update. It has 11 new topics, including chronic fatigue syndrome, HIV infection and croup. However, because of its length, it cannot be considered a quick pocket reference book.

Therapeutic Choices helps practitioners choose the most appropriate treatment for their patients. A wide variety of topics makes it relevant to various disciplines. A simple cost indicator is helpful when considering this aspect in the choice of medications. Each chapter is standardized under the headings of Goals of Therapy, Investigations, and Therapeutic Choices (Nonpharmacological and Pharmacological). Occasionally, this rigid approach makes for inclusion of material that is either well known or easily accessible elsewhere.

The algorithms and other diagrams and tables are excellent. The index is particularly helpful for cross-referencing trade names with approved names. This book is recommended for students and residents, and for physicians, both generalists and specialty based.

Peter John Kirk, MB, ChB
 Professor and Head
 Department of Family Medicine
Leo Luciani, MD
 Resident in Family Medicine
 University of Manitoba
 Winnipeg, Man.

The Athletic Musician: a Guide to Playing Without Pain

Barbara Paull, Christine Harrison. 175 pp. Illust. Scarecrow Press, Lanham, Md. 1997. US$27. ISBN 0-8108-3356-5

Overall rating: Poor
Strengths:

- Addresses important subject
- Appropriate for the lay reader
- Warnings for musicians not to play in pain

Weaknesses:

- Information and recommendations reflect authors' opinions and experience rather than an evidence-based approach to injury prevention
- Many inaccurate or misleading statements not supported by research
- Though presented as a book for all musicians, the focus is on shoulder impingement syndrome and string players
- Many common playing-related injuries are either not clearly defined or not even mentioned
- Anatomy for brass players embouchure problems is not presented
- Lack of warnings for the reader (especially the injured reader) to consult a physician, or any health professional other than an orthopedic physiotherapist before engaging in the athletic protocol, which emphasizes neck and back extension stretches

Audience: Musicians, especially string players with shoulder impingement syndrome

This book was written by a physiotherapist (Paull) and her violinist patient (Harrison), who began teaching injury prevention workshops after their experience with Harrison's shoulder problem. It addresses an important topic, anatomy is described clearly with simple diagrams, and the recommendations not to play in pain are appropriate.

Although this book appears to be intended for all musicians, the focus is on one type of shoulder impingement syndrome. Few other playing-related injuries are defined or even mentioned, and facial anatomy (applicable to woodwind and brass players) is not covered.

There are several inaccurate statements about musicians' injuries, and much of the research on risk factors for occupational musculoskeletal disorders is either ignored or misinterpreted. The authors frequently make statements such as "study after study shows" without providing any references. No research support is provided for pronouncements such as "Never do sit-ups in any shape or form." Although the exercise protocol is presented as injury-prevention for musicians, research demonstrating its effectiveness is not evident. Similarly, in promoting their "ergonomically designed playing chair" the authors offer testimonials and state: "All that remains to be done is to persuade healthy musicians to try this [chair] and learn how to use it as a strong dose of injury-prevention medicine." The authors provide no evaluation of the effectiveness of the chair.

The few research studies that are cited suggest a biased selection rather than a comprehensive literature review. For example, according to the best prevalence studies, playing-related injuries affect approximately 43% of professional musicians;¹ however, the authors cite only studies reporting injury prevalence of 57% to 87%. By ignoring the methodological problems of the few cited studies as well as ignoring more rigorous studies, the authors misrepresent and overstate a problem that is significant even without exaggeration. Similarly, the authors' warning against taking anti-inflammatory medications is accompanied by statistics on hospitalization and death that were reported at one conference presentation. Their cautions to "sit as seldom as possible" are based on one 1976 study.

The authors advise readers who are injured that this book does not replace their own orthopedic physiotherapist, and readers who experience pain while performing the recommended stretches or exercises are urged to consult an orthopedic physiotherapist. However, there are no cautions for the reader (injured or uninjured) to consult a physician (or any health professional other than an orthopedic physiotherapist) before engaging in the exercise protocol. The lack of appropriate warnings and the authors' emphasis on back extension stretches are cause for concern.

Although Harrison's detailed account of her injury experience illustrates some frustrations other musicians encounter when consulting health professionals, both she and Paull make several unnecessary derogatory comments regarding diagnostic tests and treatments used by health professionals other than orthopedic physiotherapists.

In sum, this book presents the authors' opinions and experience rather than a comprehensive evidence-based approach to injury prevention.

Christine Zaza, ARCT, BMus, MSc, PhD

National Cancer Institute of Canada
Postdoctoral Fellow
University of Western Ontario
London, Ont.
Director, Canadian Network
for Health in the Arts

Reference

- 1. Zaza C. Playing-related musculoskeletal disorders in musicians: a systematic review of incidence and prevalence. CMAJ 1998;158:1019-25.

Source Book in Bioethics: a Documentary History

Edited by Albert R. Jonsen, Robert M. Veatch, LeRoy Walters. 510 pp. Georgetown U Pr. 1998. US$95. ISBN 0-87840-683-2

Overall rating: Excellent, for US readers; good, for others
Strengths: Good source of US bioethics

Weaknesses: and health law documents; well written historical introductions
US audience; most documentation not necessarily applicable to Canadians
Audience: Anyone with an academic interest in bioethics and health law

Jonsen, Veatch and Walters, well known and respected US bioethicists, have done an excellent job in compiling many of the pivotal documents in bioethics and health law of the last few decades. (As bioethics is a very new discipline, this really does constitute an historical approach.)

The five sections cover research on humans, death and dying, human genetics, human reproduction and the changing health care system. Each begins with an historical introduction by one of the editors, followed by documents (e.g., the well known Belmont Report).

The editors promise to "Bring[s] together in a single volume the core legislative documents, court briefs, and reports by professional organizations, public bodies, and governments around the world." Unfortunately, "the world" does not include anything north of the 49th parallel. There are only a few documents from countries other than the United States. Although the literature is interesting and informative, much of it, particularly the law, is not applicable in Canada. Indeed, relevant ethical and legal Canadian documents concerning all areas discussed in the book do exist, and these documents may be more important for Canadian readers interested in our own social policies and norms.

This is not to say that Canadians cannot benefit from the insights of these respected bioethicists and from the reproduced documents. However, particularly at $95 (US), I do not think it will become nor do I think it ought to become "a standard text for courses in bioethics" . . . at least not for readers outside the United States.

Sandra J. Taylor, PhD
Bioethicist and
Director of Ethics Education
School of Medicine
Faculty of Health Sciences
Queen's University
Kingston, Ont.

Running With the Caribou

Pete Sarsfield. 210 pp. Turnstone Press, Winnipeg. 1997. $16.95. ISBN 0-88801-215-2

Overall rating: Good
Strengths: Well written, humorous, personal
Weaknesses: None
Audience: All medical practitioners and libraries

In Running With the Caribou Pete Sarsfield sketches a broad picture of his 25 years as a community health physician in northern communities in Ontario, Manitoba, Labrador and the North West Territories. Part medical log, part personal quest, part travelogue, this book takes you on a journey you will be pleased you made.

Sarsfield allows us into his Canada: the northern landscape, native peoples, friends, family, his travels, and the provision of health care in the north. One gets the sense that most of his time has been spent in an airplane, train or bus, but in many cases, getting to the frontier is the best part of the story. He has made excursions to Hong Kong, Sweden and to Nevis, where his Canadian medical training is called "destructively irrelevant" to that small nation.

His writing style is subtle, economical and elegant. He wonders about medical specialists who have "chosen to avoid most ordinary human contact by becoming unusually adept in one tiny area of people's problems." Waiting for the Pope in Fort Simpson's "spiritual fog" is described with an eye to the cultural differences between the northern peoples and people like Sarsfield with his southern accent and beard. He speaks out against white people who worry that the Pope will support native rights.

He entertains us with a discussion of proper doctor attire. He writes with authority on the patchwork of northern health care and on new nursing stations ("tin monstrosities") that will provide less health care rather than more. Sarsfield has an enormous respect for nurses. We can believe him when he says: "When I grow up I'd like to be a nurse."

Whether the subject is a simple cross-country train trip or the story of being caught in a dangerous Labrador snowstorm, we are charmed by Sarsfield's thoughtful humanitarianism, his generosity, humour and attention to detail. Most important, this is a man who is having fun and a man always willing to learn and teach.

Medical practitioners will find Running With the Caribou entertaining, educational and inspirational.

Brian D. Cameron, BA, MA, MLS
Information Specialist
Fudger Health Sciences Library
The Toronto Hospital —
General Division
Toronto, Ont.

Books and other media received

Livres et autres documents reçus

Clinical medicine

Essentials of Family Practice. 2nd ed. Edited by R.E. Rakel. 626 pp. Illust. Harcourt Brace. 1998. $74.95. ISBN 0-7216-5868-7

Independent Medical Examinations for Insurance and Legal Reports. M.C. Hall. 194 pp. Butterworths. 1998. $62. ISBN 0-433-40968-1

Genetics

All You Need to Know About DNA, Genes and Genetic Engineering: A Concise, Comprehensive Outline. G.R. Carter, S.M. Boyle. 134 pp. Illust. Charles C Thomas. 1998. US$22.95. ISBN 0-398-06870-4

Clinical Companion to the Molecular and Genetic Basis of Neurological Disease. 2nd ed. Edited by R.N. Rosenberg, S.B. Prusiner, S. DiMauro, R.L. Barchi. 318 pp. Butterworth-Heinemann. 1998. US$45. ISBN 0-7506-7043-6

Internal medicine

Conn's Current Therapy 1998. 50th Anniversary Edition. Edited by R.E. Rakel. 1326 pp. Illust. Harcourt Brace. 1998. $88.95. ISBN 0-7216-7223-X

Diabetes Mellitus: Diagnosis and Treatment. 4th ed. Edited by M.B. Davidson. Harcourt Brace. 1998. $97.95. ISBN 0-7216-6403-2

Preventive Cardiology: a Guide for Clinical Practice. Edited by K. Robinson. 419 pp. Illust. Futura Publishing, Armonk, NY. 1998. US$69. ISBN 0-87993-692-4

Williams Textbook of Endocrinology. 9th ed. Edited by J.D. Wilson, D.W. Foster, H.M. Kronenberg, P.R. Larsen. 1819 pp. Illust. Harcourt Brace. 1998. $225. ISBN 0-7216-6152-1

Neurology

The Dementias. Edited by J.H. Growdon, M.N. Rossor. 441 pp. Illust. Vol. 19 of Blue Books of Practical Neurology Series. Butterworth-Heinemann. 1998. US$95. ISBN 0-7506-9920-5

Textbook of Neurology. Edited by J. Bogousslavsky, M. Fisher. 870 pp. Illust. Butterworth-Heinemann. 1998. US$75. ISBN 0-7506-9918-3

Occupational medicine

Disability Claims Management. A. Leckie, coordinating author. 272 pp. Butterworths. 1998. $53. ISBN 0-433-40892-8

Oncology

Imaging in Oncology. Edited by W.L. Curati, D.O. Cosgrove, M.J. Lipton, D.J. Allison. 217 pp. Illust. Oxford U Pr. 1998. ISBN 1-900151-030

Ophthalmology

Uveitis. S. Lightman, H.M.A. Towler. 163 pp. Illust. Fundamentals of Clinical Ophthalmology Series. 1998. ISBN 0-7279-1202-X

Orthopedics

The Shoulder. 2nd ed. Vols. 1 and 2. Edited by C.A. Rockwood, Jr., F.A. Matsen III, M.A. Wirth, D.T. Harryman II. 1387 pp (set). Illust. Harcourt Brace. 1998. $338 (set). ISBN 0-7216-8135-2 (vol. 1); 0-7216-8136-0 (vol. 2); 0-7216-8134-4 (set)

Psychiatry / Psychiatrie

ABC of Mental Health. Edited by T. Davies, T.K.J. Craig. 82 pp. Illust. BMJ Books. 1998. ISBN 0-7279-1220-8

Aider sans nuire : de la victimisation à la coopération. S. Lamarre. 169 p. Éditions Lescop, Montréal. 1998. ISBN 2-9804832-3-0

Reprints

Bulk reprints of CMAJ articles are available in minimum quantities of 50

For information or orders:
Reprint Coordinator
tel 800 663-7336 x2110
fax 613 565-2382
murrej@cma.ca

ASSOCIATION MÉDICALE CANADIENNE  CANADIAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION