

Appendix 1 (as supplied by the authors): The skin biopsy demonstrated dermal perineural granulomatous inflammation (hematoxylin and eosin stain, $100 \times$ magnification) and scarce mycobacterium after Ziehl-Neelsen stain (inset). Inset: the Mycobacterium leprae PCR test was positive (Genotype LepraeDR, HAIN Lifescience).

Appendix to: Vázquez-López F, Gonzalez-Lara, L. Painless needle prick on an erythematous plaque: a sign of leprosy. CMAJ 2013.DOI:10.1503/cmaj.130221. Copyright © 2014 The Author(s) or their employer(s). To receive this resource in an accessible format, please contact us at cmajgroup@cmaj.ca