

Figure 1: Typical images obtained from a routine tele-retina screening assessment. Colour fundus (upper left) and red-free (upper right) photographs showing changes consistent with moderate nonproliferative diabetic retinopathy. Optical coherence tomography B-scan through the fovea (bottom) shows center-involving diabetic macular edema.